"W. B. GREENLAW, JR,"

—George W. Murphy yesterday filed in the first chancery court a petition for an injunction against W. B. Greenlaw, H. T. Greenlaw, Chas. H. Duprez, and Lou Benedict. The allegations of the bill are substantially to the effect, that the petitioner had bound W. B. Greenlaw in the sum of five thousand dollars how the thirty-five hundred dollars had been paid under the agreement, which was that said Murphy should have one-taind of the net proceeds arising from entertainments given at the Memphis Theater and Greenlaw Operahouse; that Murphy had been employed as treasurer and ticket-agent, but for such services had received no compensation. The bill prays for a receiver to be appointed for the Theater, and that said Greenlaw be enjoined from disposing of the furniture and effects or said Theater; and that said Duprez & Benedict be enjoined from paying said Greenlaw any money arising from the proceeds of the enterthinment now given at the Operahouse; and that the receiver take charge and pay up all back salarjes and rents which are due; and further the complainant prays that he be restored to his position as ticket-agent and treasurer of the Theater. Upon the execution of the necessary bond, the injunction was ordered to issue.

AMUSEMENTS.

There was a highly respectable and large andience at the Theater last night, the attendance testifying but for the great opposition elsewhere the house would have been literally crowded. The entertainment given by the Chapman Sisters is of a chaste and refined character, and free from everything that even trenches on the vulgar, or even broad buffoonery. The performance commenced with the somewhat old farce of Nature and Philosophy, in which Miss Ella Chapman appeared as "Colin" (the youth who never saw a woman, and for her very spirited acting received an enthusiastic call before the curtain. The burlesque was entitled Lotus and Leo, but any other title would have been equally appropriate. It has no plot, so to speak, but this is characteristic of all the burlesques of the present day. It however serves as a convenient peg on which to haug all kinds of musts, come, sentimental and pathetic. Miss Blanched hauman was in splendid voice last

Last night the Greenlaw Operahouse was crowded until there was scarcely standing room, the occasion being the second appearance of the Duprez & Benedict ministreis. From the time the curtain rose until the performance was concluded, the house was delighted, as was manifested by oft-repeated encores justly merited by the excellence of the entire entertainment, which was wanting in no feature that could interest and please the audience. The end men are remarkably good. Their jokes are new and good, and have never been heard from other ministreis. In fact, the originality of their pure caused all to roar with laughter. The singing was superior in every respect, and this feature alone is worth the price of admission. We were glad to see so many of our oid and prominent citizens in the Operahouse, and also a large, humber of laddes. We dare say that all felt well repaid for their presence, and will not soon forget the pleasure afforded by Duprez & Benedict's ministreis last night. There will be a grand family matinee at two o'clock this afternoon, when there will be another entire change of the programme, which is about twice as long as that of most ministret troupes. Duprez & Benedict know exactly what is needed to entertain our citizens in the most pleasant and delightful manner. They never fail in their efforts, as will be testified to by the hundreds present last night. Those who expect to attend the matinee this afternoon should lose no time in procuring reserved seats, which can be had for the additional price of twenty-five cents. It will be well to remember that the price of admission to any part of the Operahouse is but fifty cents. To-night the ministreis take their farewell benefit, and will of course have a crowded house. We again urge upon those who expect to attend the importance of securing reserved seats in due time.

dmire the terribly picturesque had an ex-ellent opportunity yesterday for the full tratification of their taste in the conflagration admire the terribiy picturesque had an excellent opportunity yesterday for the full gratification of their taste in the conflagration which made the noontide hour, in the neighborhood of Madison and Monroe streets, the scene of intense excitement among thousands of people. It was unly a few minutes after one Uciock when a few tips of the frebells apread the alarm, and at once there was a general rush in all directions to ascertain where was the incipient conflagration. The general current of anxious citizens presently set in the direction of the Peabody hotel. Like inrushing volumes of air to a blast furnace, the crowds sweet on from all sides, led by the volumes of smoke that curied up and darkened the bright blue of the sky. The throng was simply immense. One was at a loss to account for the presence; on Monroe street, of several thousand people before even the firemen had thus to reach the stirring scene. And not only on Monroe, but on Main and Second and Madison, all round that neighborhood easy perambulation was a thing out of the question. The mattress factory of Mitchell & Hoffman, in rear of their Main street furniture store, had taken fire and was blazing away, threatening immediate ruin to the magnificent "insurance building" en Madison and the adjoining confectionery of Mr. Specht. The brick stable of Brown & Gilmore, about which there was considerable wood-work adjoining the before-mentioned shop, were the first to show the effects of the first power than the sweet withered and crumbled like dry prairie grass in the fall, in fact, lasted no time. The excited crowds clamored for "water! water!" and howled for the fire-engines, Imagining, in the impatient anxiety of the moment, that every minute was an hour. The perishable character of the materials presented to the operation of the flames, secured a rapid blaze and a hot fire. Last should the time the first treem minute was an hour. The perishable character of the materials presented to the operation of the fames, secured a rapid blaze and a hot fire. Just about the time the first stream of Wolf river water commenced playing anald the crackling timbers, the rear windows of Specht's store commenced smoking, and at the same time the vast pile known as the Insurance building gave unmistakable evidence of being in imminent danger, and the cry became general on all sides that the fire had caught the great structure and it was bound to "go up." The prompt and fearless action of the firemen, however, resulted in soon restoring confidence. A strong stream, directed with energy and skill, allayed all fears for the safety of

however, resulted in soon restoring confidenc. A strong stream, directed with energy and skill, at layed all fears for the safety of Specht's and the Insurance building. In the meantime, the fire ate its destructive way among the stables even over to the Bay Horse saloon, so that the building on Second street, at the corner of Monroe, was threatened with a quick dissolution. Mansford's book-house was said to be on fire. The Bay Horse smoked as if ten thousand beer-drinkers within had suddenly and simultaneously concluded to enjoy a cigar each. The mules and horses had been taken out of the stables before the fire reached the stalls. The block of buildings on Monroe, opposite Bracket's stable, were in great danger, so that the people Interested busied themselves in removing their perishables on to the street as well as they could. The constantly increasing crowd, which became denser every second, would have rendered all effort at saving goods vain had there been any real danger. The firengines had a most excellent chance to put in their "best licks," owing to the convenience of the fire-pings at all the assailed corners, so that there was free scope and ample room for the full and effectual play of each upon the flames. In twenty minutes the fire had spant its fury, was completely under control, and the valuable business houses that had been threatened were pronounced safe. The ten thousand people precely under control and the Variable dust-ness houses that had been threatened were pronounced safe. The ten thousand people that gathered to witness the fire dispersed al-most as quickly as they had come together. The wonder of every one seemed to be where every one else had come from so soon. The whole square bounded by Monroe and Madi-son Maylanged Second streets seemed at the son. Main and Second streets seemed at the son, Main and Second streets seemed at the commencement in such danger that every one felt anxious, and there was a deep breath of relief drawn when the danger was passed. There were four or five streams playing through the hose without the aid of engines, which was due to the pressure of the water. The engines at work did good service under the direction of Chief M Fadden. DAMAGES TO PLANTERS' BUILDING. The total damages to the Planters' insur-ance building amount to $200, and is con-

The brir 2 feed and auction stable fronting on Secon 1 street, and owned by Brown & Gilmore, caught fire from the mattress factory, and, with its contents of provender, was entirely destroyed, involving a total loss of two thousand two hundred dollars, on which there was no insurance. All of the horses and vehicles were safely removed.

PERSONAL DAMAGES. When it was announced that the Planters' insurance building was on fire the livellest excitement was manifested, and a great many persons fied to the scene of conflagration. Capitain George S. Mallory, secretary of the underwriters, Dr. D. T. Porter, Mr. Robinson, Mr. Phil Mallon and other citizens set to work to save this noble structure, which is occupied by lawyers, insurance agents, physicians and railroad officers. Many of the rooms are occupied as sleeping apartments, and when the flames reached the rear of the building there was among the occupants, most of whom, despite the assurances of Chief McFadden, fled with whatever plunder they could take. The rooms were but slightly damaged, however, and many who ran down the steps ran up again, regretting the precipitate haste that in-duced their departure. THE ROOMS DAMAGED in the Planters' building were as follows: No. 36, occupied by McFarland & Goodman, lawyers—the room suffered from water, while some of the books and papers were lost or mislaid; room No. 29, occupied by J. G. Lonsdale, insurance agent, was damaged to some extent, a valuable oil picture being scorched by the fire; the efforts of Wm. Lewis prevented much damage, as he hurriedly removed every article within reach; room No. 39, occupied by Captain John C. Maccabe, was turned upside down, and its furniture jammed together the company of the months of the control of the cont

The origin of the fire is not known. Shortly after the hostler had taken his animal out of the shed, the mattress-maker, Henry Schupsir, left the rear portion of the factory. He had not been out more than two minutes before the building was discovered on fire, and the alarm was sounded. No fire was ever allowed in the room where the flames commenced, and no employee was permitted to smoke there. The presumption by some is that the building was fired by an outside party, who is unknown. One of the windows near the place where the fire originated was open, and perhaps the incendiary threw a match into the shavings and combustible material of the room. The hostler or driver is not suspected of the crime, as his room, which was in the rear of the factory, was destroyed with the bedding, clothing and furniture.

PERSONAL INJURIES. PERSONAL INJURIES.

Henry Schupsir, the mattress maker upon seeing the flames, immediately rushed into the burning apartment and commenced taking out whatever he could. The faithful employe seized the blazing mattresses, and at last fell unconscious, his hands boing badly injured by the fire and the hair of his head burned off. He was placed in a vehicle and driven home, where medical aid was had. Schupsir was a careful, trustworthy workman, and certainly could not have had anything to do with the malicious firing of the factory. Dr. D. T. Porter, in his efforts to subdue the burning roof of the Pianters' building, had burning roof of the Flanters' building, had his hands burned, but we are glad to know the injuries are not serious. A NARROW ESCAPE. While Chief McFadden was passing by the burning factory the walls fell and narrowly missed him. The escape was quite fortunate, as he would have been severely injured, if not killed, by the falling ruins. In 1890, when the walls of the building corner of Main and Monroe streets fell, two firemen were killed. We hope no such fate may befall any other members of the department.

Having selected Mr. J. C. Oats as my successor, and taking this method of thanking my many friends for past patronage, I heartily extend invitations to all old patrons to give as liberal patronage to Mr. Oats, and guarantee that all will be pleased.

MESSES. WM. BROWN & Co., the stock-dealers burnt out by the fire yesterday, have moved to the stables of C. H. Brackett & Co., where they will continue to sell their stock at the lowest figures. They have on hand fifty No. I mules, and twenty-five head of horses, that they desire to close out at once. Give them a call, and you will not fail to get a bargain.

THE keenest watchfulness is necessary where consumption is hereditary, or runs in families, but, nevertheless, it by no means follows that because father and grandfather have passed away victims to this terrible some cause. Prudence in living, plenty of out-door exercise, and an active mode of life, will certainly be requisites, and, moreover, everything like cold, cough, or pain in the side or lung, should be checked at the very start. For this purpose there is nothing like and an effectual curative of all diseases of the bronchis and of the lungs. A bottle of this medicine has been well known THE keenest watchfulness is necessary

GOOLSBY VS. OZANNE.

Card from the Former in Answer to that of the Latter in the Appeal of the Seventh Instant

Statements of facts Supported by the Testimony of W. A. Fewell and C. W. Duval-Etc.

EDITORS APPEAL-I noticed, in your issue of the ninth, a card signed U. Ozanne, and it seems that he wished to make a correction of my report of the seventh concerning my arrest of John McCartny, for whose apprehension a reward had been offered. Judge Ozanne is the sheriff of Panola county, Mississippi, and has always been henored as a perfect gentleman, a splendid officer, and ever sissippi, and has always been henored as a perfect gentleman, a splendid officer, and ever ready to perform his duty—he is a stirring man, and as a general thing is successful in his undertakings, though he or no one else was fast enough to get John McCarthy out of my possession before I turned him over to Mr. J. T. Flynn, who had offered the reward. I do not say that this was Judge Ozanne's intention, though he never stated in his dispatches to me while at Horn Lake why he wanted me to return with the prisoner to sardis. I have in my possession the dispatches, part of which he denies sending, the same being those published in the Appeal of the seventh. If there be a mistake, not I, but the telegraph company is responsible. He accused me of bringing the prisoner to Memphis without the prisoner's consent. I believe if asked to-day, McCarthy would corroborate my statement. I have twenty-five withcrease to this, and herewith hand you the statement made by one witnesses to this, and herewith hand you the statement made by one

"Hoss Lake, February 10, 1874.
"The prisoner was asked in my presence if he wished to go to Memphis or back to Sardis. He responded, 'Let me go to Memphis.'

I have never made an agreement with Judge Ozanne to watch his jail. Our city of Sardis, I understood, had been threatened with incendiarism by parties who had friends in the jail. Under these circumstances Mr. kunk and I took the contract from Mayor J. A. Poik, of Sardis, to watch the town and go to the jail occasionally, to see if any one could be detected in the act of conversing with the prisoners or trying to assist them to escape.

Judge Ozanne also said, in the card published by you, something about having sent me on the search, and furnishing me the identical description of McCarthy, and of sending two other parties in the opposite direction. He certainly furnished me with Mr. Burk's dispatch, giving a description of McCarthy. I left the next morning early on the search, and am satisfied that Sheriff Ozanne was in his little couch, taking his case, despite the act of the telegraph operator in naving rend the description of McCarthy in the fugility presence. I think I had the prisoner captured before any one had started in search of him. I have made many inquiries, and can not find the two men who went on the search. In regard to this allegaent on the search. In regard to this allega on of Sheriff Ozanne, the following card ex

"SARDIS, February 10, 1874. "Myself and Mr. Butler Cariton went out without Judge Ozanne's request. If there is any one else who went I do not know it. "C. W. DUVAL." I have been informed by several that Sheriff Ozanne saidlae sent the dispatches for my own interest, while many other parties have told me that he was working for his own interest, if. a.—Judge Ozanne and greenbacks.]

He said something in regard to his having no desire to blackmall the railroad company that offered the reward. Of this I know nothing, and have never made such a charge I have the telegrams, signed with the name U. Ozanne, requesting me to return with U. Ozanne, requesting me to return with Mr. McCartay, "Will take no excuse." "Tel Mr. McCartky. "Will take no excuse." "Telegraph nothing to Memphis." "Return from Horn Lake." "Don't go to Memphis." It is unnecessary to republish in full these dispatches, which I do not say Sheriff Ozanne sent, nor that they were forged by the operators; I know that I received them, and had no cause to suspect that they were forgerles. I do not think that he could work for the railroad company and my interest. I do not believe he was working for me. If so, he would not have telegraphed to Mr. J. T. Flynn, superintendent of the Memphis and Louisville railroad, not to pay any one the reward until he (Ozunne) had been any one the reward until he (Ozanne) had been consulted. I would have made an expla-nation to Sheriff Ozanne, had he desired it as to the reasons which induced me to leave the country with McCarthy, had not the last named dispatch been sent by him. It is true Sheriff Ozanne is willing to help Memphis al-he can, and I am willing to do the same.
